DEVELOPMENT OF THE COLONY AND ITS COUNTIES INCLUDING REGIONAL NAMES

THE COLONY:

1. Colony of Providence Plantations in Narragansett Bay in New England, organized in 1643, included the original towns of Providence, Portsmouth, Newport and Warwick.
2. Rhode Island, organized in 1659, included the original towns of Providence, Warwick, Newport, Portsmouth and the Narragansett Country.
3. Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, organized in 1663, included most of present-day Rhode Island. The colony also laid claim to areas in Massachusetts, namely Cumberland, Barrington, Warren, Bristol, Tiverton and Little Compton, which were considered part of the Plymouth Colony. See the listings of these towns for further details.
4. State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, became part of the Union in 1791.

THE COUNTIES:

1. Kings Province, 1666, included Washington County except for New Shoreham.
2. Providence Plantation, 1703, included modern Providence County, Kent County and Washington County, with Providence as the shiretown.
3. Rhode Island County, 1703, included Portsmouth, New Shoreham, Jamestown and Newport, with the latter as shiretown.
4. Providence Plantation, renamed Providence County 1729.
5. Rhode Island County, renamed Newport County 1729.
6. Kings County, 1729, included land south of East Greenwich, with South Kingstown as the shiretown. This was most of the Narragansett Country.
7. Bristol County, 1747, formed from land from Massachusetts, included Bristol, Warren and Barrington, with Bristol as shiretown.
8. Kent County, 1750, from Providence County, included Warwick, East Greenwich, Coventry, W. Greenwich and Potowomut Neck, with East Greenwich as shiretown.
9. Kings County, renamed Washington County 1781.

REGIONAL NAMES:

1. Aquidneck, included Newport, Middletown and Portsmouth.
2. Narragansett Country, included Washington County, East Greenwich and W. Greenwich; it was claimed by Connecticut for many years.
3. Block Island, purchased 1661, part of the Rhode Island colony in 1664, Rhode Island County, 1703
